

Introduction

The Potter's Field Cemetery is located on the north side of Guerley Road in the suburb of West Price Hill in Cincinnati. Potter's Field is the traditional name given to a burial ground reserved for strangers and the friendless poor. The name is an allusion to the field mentioned in the New Testament as the place bought by the chief priests with the 30 pieces of silver returned to them by Judas. The site on Guerley Road was the third Potter's Field in Cincinnati, Ohio. The first site was bounded by Plum, Elm, 12th and 13th Streets, and was clearly marked on early Cincinnati maps in 1819 and 1831. This is the present location of Music Hall, which was built over the site in 1876. The second location was on Lincoln Park Drive, now named Ezzard Charles Drive, approximately 0.2 mile west of Central Parkway. Burials from this location were supposedly removed and taken to the Guerley Road site.

The individuals buried in Potter's Field in Cincinnati usually had died unexpectedly, were indigent, or were without guardianship. All bodies from the various public institutions were interred in the Potter's Field burial ground unless claimed by relatives. The records reflect changes that occurred over almost one hundred years – different coroners, different funeral homes that handled burials, different places of death and different causes of death. There were many persons whose identity could not be determined at the time of burial. They are listed as "Unknown" in the records. The letters "AS" were placed by names when the body was placed at the Cincinnati Medical School for "anatomical study" and returned later to the cemetery for burial. At the cemetery, each grave was marked only by a piece of board with the corresponding number in the record book, which disappeared over time. Very few grave markers exist at the cemetery today.

In 1981, the use of this cemetery was discontinued, its having reached maximum capacity. Cincinnati and Hamilton County now contract with funeral directors for indigent burials in private cemeteries. Maintenance for this cemetery was given in 2000 to the City of Cincinnati Park Board. It had been without any substantial maintenance for many years prior.

The following facts of interest about this burial site were printed in the Cincinnati Tribune newspaper on January 13, 1895: Burials from the morgue were paid for by the county from the county fund, by city infirmaries from the city fund, and by the city hospital from the hospital fund. The sexton was paid $1.25 per body for his burial service. Prior to the opening of this cemetery in the fall of 1852, indigent burials were made at Lincoln Park and on the former lot of the Music Hall building. The newspaper of 1895 reported an estimate of about 4,000 removals from the two former sites to the new location at Guerley Road, but no names or records are known to exist for these reinterments. These earlier sites ceased to be used for burials. By 1895, nearly 10,000 burials had been made at the Guerley Road cemetery as they averaged about 250 a year. The article counted 679 burials for 1866 and attributed the large number to Civil War soldiers returning north who were injured or who had contracted diseases, as names and causes of death were not listed. More likely, the high number of burials was due to the cholera epidemic that broke out during the summer months of that year.

The 1852 tract of land was comprised of 28 acres, a residence, and a barn for the use of the sexton. The sexton used part of this acreage for farm crops and pasture for his farm animals. By 1895, the buildings were in disrepair. Thomas Williams was the sexton in 1895, and he had been preceded by M. Schweine, Martin Kroulig, Henry Ridder, John Schaeffer, J.A. Schaeffer, and John Lowry.

Existing records of burials begin in 1901 and continue through 1981 when burials at the cemetery ceased. These records are currently stored in the Genealogy Department at the main branch of the Cincinnati and Hamilton County Public Library (CHPL), and comprise three chronological records books and five boxes of 3" x 5" index cards. The set of index cards covers a portion of the records in the log books and there are duplicates in the set of index cards. Each set of index cards is organized by year and then mostly alphabetical within the year. In some cases, the information in the redundant index cards differs slightly from the log books. Most of the differences involve the dates of burial, and when a discrepancy was noticed between the records, the chronological log book dates were used.

The existing set of records consists of the following and covers the following periods.

Book 1	March 1901 – October 1942
Book 2	January 1929 – January 1939 – duplicate of Book 1
Book 3	April 1965 – March 1981
Box 1	1938 – 1948 (860 cards)
Box 2	1949 – 1970 (550 cards)
Box 3	1959 – 1980 (480 cards)
Box 4	1971 – 1980 (230 cards)
Box 5	1938 – 1959 (1007 cards)

This set of records was digitized by the staff of the Genealogy & Local History Department in 2019 and is available for remote viewing using the Digital Library on the CHPL website. The Digital Library can be accessed at <https://digital.cincinnati.org/digital/> and then by selecting Genealogy & Local History, Indigent Burial Records, Cincinnati, or directly at the following link,

The source for this collection is call number 929.377177 ffH217.

The amount of information recorded varies from year to year. In general, the earlier records starting in 1901 have more information, which includes: name of the deceased, date of burial, age, race, place of death, grave number for burial, undertaker, comments or notes. Later information is not as complete, and not all information recorded in the log books was typed on the index cards.

In order to make the information more accessible to researchers, this index records the information source by book number and page, which roughly corresponds to the digital image, and for the set of index cards by the box and image number. For example, an entry in the Book / Page column of 1-30 refers to Book 1, Page 30, and an entry in the Box / Image column of 3-272; 4-375 refers to duplicate entries found in Box 3 and digital image 272 and Box 4 and digital image 375.

Some common abbreviations used in the records:

AS	Anatomical study – at the medical college or embalming school
B	Black, African American
C	Colored, African American
C	Cremated (when used in the grave column)

N	Negro, African American
s.b.	Stillborn (when used in the age column)
T.B. San	Tuberculosis sanitarium (later known as Dunham Hospital)
Tuber Sana	Tuberculosis sanitarium (later known as Dunham Hospital)
W	White, Caucasian

Some of the information indexed in this collection can also be found in Hamilton County, Ohio and Cincinnati, Ohio, Morgue Records June 1887 to 1992, edited by Margie and Michael Mohr, and published by the Hamilton County Genealogical Society in 2004.
