Preface

The text from which this index was extracted was compiled by Henry A. Ford, A.M. and Mrs. Kate B. Ford, and published by L.A. Williams & Company in 1881. It called itself the "first history of Cincinnati that has yet found itself in print." The text, comprised of more than 525 pages was written by a number of people, hence the various ways an individual's name was recorded and spelled. For example:

Corry, Mr.
Corry, William
Corry, William M.

Or

Allison
Allison, Doctor
Allison, Dr. Richard

Etc.

By reading the text one might deduce that this is the same person; however, no judgments were made.

Names appearing exactly the same more than one time on a single page of the text are not repeated in this index. Generally, the titles and honorary monikers are not used, unless for clarity. Spelling of names is exactly as found in the text, no modification made. Every effort was made to present names exactly as the text read, though as in any human effort and computer keyboarding, errors may occur. Genealogists and historians alike will find this every name index helpful for the period covered.

Extraction of the names of this index was a work project of 34 members of the Hamilton County Genealogical Society in recognition of Make-A-Difference Day in the fall of 2002, as the third project in an annual M.A.D. project for one of our local repositories in Hamilton County. The work was typed and proofed to the original text, alphabetically sorted, purged of exact duplicates, and a final manuscript prepared.
